

CALL ERROR PREVENTION

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0030] A call error prevention method comprises the steps of inputting a call number, checking whether the input number is a recognizable call service code, determining whether the input number contains the same number of digits as a recognized call service code, and generating an input error warning if the input number does not contain the same number of digits as the recognized call service code.